

If you don't face water intrusion problems now...

...you might just get soaked later.

Since the early 90's, literally thousands of new homes were built with construction defects. Leaky windows, stucco defects, and other unseen water intrusion problems can cost you tens or even hundreds of thousands of dollars to repair.

Even if you've been assured that your problems will be fixed, you might not be able to recover a thing without proper representation - leaving you high and, well, wet.
